

Why is it only those using land and property location data that are eligible for the Accelerator Program?

The way we use location data is constantly evolving and plays a big part in how we live our lives and plan our cities.

Supporting businesses that are using location data to fuel emerging technology supports the community to experience things in a different way.

Landgate and our partners work with and utilise location data on a day to day basis and want to take the opportunity to support Western Australian businesses that are finding new ways to use location data.

We are excited to see what the next innovation in location technology will be.
